Fred Fredburger is Cliqbook PM? "YES!"

localhost news

TV personality Fred Fredburger has taken on the role of Cliqbook PM for Concur Technologies. When asked whether he would accept the position, Fredburger enthusiastically shouted "YES!" (which is pretty much how he responds to every question). Additionally, Fredburger was keen to add "I LIKE NACHOS!" when asked if he would take on QA as well.

Fredburger recently experienced a conflict of interest between his civic and corporate duties when he received a jury summons. Concerned that he couldn't miss the user conference, Fredburger shouted "JUDGE! UH, JUDGE! I HAVE TO GO PEE PEE! REAL BAD!" Fredburger was granted a reprieve shortly after the judge finished laughing and blowing coffee out of his nose. See the full story at <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=FMYkpr-qwZU>

Redmond Visitors asked to "Take the Blue Pill"

Seattle Times

Visitors to Concur's Redmond office are being asked to take the blue pill, according to sources who haven't been there yet. "It's obvious," says an anonymous source named Joe, "by the way they tell you about teamwork, trust, and how we're all working for Concur now. They've downed the blue pill for sure!" Employees who have visited Redmond, on the other hand, say they don't remember anything about blue or red pills. "Concur has no need of blue pills," says Concur Facilities director Al Kinsky. "We have free drinks!" Others claim the color of the pill makes no difference. "All the pills contain Java. Red, blue, or whatever, they don't come from Morpheus."

Exclusive: Secret Millionaire Oilman

Rooters

Undercover reporter Sinew Sneak has learned how an oil tycoon - the founder and majority owner of Lukoil - has been masquerading as a software developer for Concur Technologies in Alexandria, VA. Sneak identified the oilman as John Lueker, who also goes by the name "Luekutus." Lueker denies any relation to Lukoil, but clear evidence, such as the similarity in name and goal of world dominance (or "assimilation"), is proof enough for the general newsreading public. (Oops, did we print that?)

Health and Fitness: Face Cream

and Michael Lore were shocked to find they used the same face cream. "I've always been trying for that leathery, pitted, war-torn appearance of Edward James Olmos," says Lore. "I never imagined the secret would be as simple as face cream." The special formulation by damAGE cosmetics, inc. is referred to as the "Adama special etch" by the manufacturer, and is sold in a special porcelain-lined lead jar.

Science: Developers are Vampires

Hal O'Ween, Special to the Fraud Report

Indisputable facts have come to light: The dimly lit offices and strange hours craved by software developers come from a deeper, darker reason.

They are in fact modern vampires. No longer requiring blood to survive, modern vampires instead receive their energy from computer programming. Every one of them will deny this truth, using various excuses, including that they "work in a different time zone," "just couldn't sleep," or "was on a roll and couldn't stop."

Vampires are historically unable to survive in direct sunlight. Modern vampires, however, have SPF-100 sunblock to protect them from most common light sources around their offices.

The good news is that it's easy to eradicate your office of these creatures: Simply hold lots of meetings, keep a strong HR department, and never have any free food.

Cliqbook to add Rickshaw support in 2007

!BTN

Sources close to the project indicate that Concur Technologies will roll out Cliqbook Rickshaw™ as part of its EMEA offering in 2007. "It's important to have full coverage of all modes of transport for each market sector. With the advent of GT3 Rickshaw™, Cliqbook can offer this important service," says Bruce Elliott, leader of the rickshaw project. Travel partners are urging Concur to "get the confirmation numbers right," something only recently handled for limos. According to

Elliott, "GT3's new Napkinware Portal allows confirmation numbers on scraps of paper to be quickly entered into their system and posted to Cliqbook."

Additionally, and for an extra fee, Cliqbook will offer Rickshaw Limo support, allowing customers to book advanced engine-powered rickshaw vehicles in the regions supported.

TRAVEL ALERT

The US Department of State has issued a travel alert for travellers taking rides from fake taxi drivers in Moscow. According to the report, people posing as cab drivers may in fact be criminals - possibly planning to rob the unwary customer.
